Tired of being overlooked and undervalued, Judith decides to leave her husband and reconnect with herself as a single woman rather than as Adam's wife. Soon, Judith's world expands to include a support group of women also facing divorce. Slowly learning to extend to herself the same compassion she offers her friends, Judith begins to rediscover her own value as a person and as a woman. And her efforts don't go unnoticed. I never planned to fall in love. Least of all with a woman, you. But I did, and telling you was the hardest thing I ever did. I knew how you would reach first, but I never anticipated how hard it will be for me or how you reacted next. I had to write, for the first time ever, and now we face book number two. I wrote just to tell you how I feel, what I think. All the things I wanted to say to you but you didn't want to listen. So I wrote, and wrote, and wrote. Flood of thoughts, feelings, whatever came to my mind. Just to give me five minutes of strength to get out of bed. I wrote for me. I wrote for you. Most of them are here. My pain, my love, my longing, my hesitations, My certainty. I know you don't want to hear from me, don't want to read what I have to tell you. But I have to get them out of me, if not to you then just out there, to the world who doesn't know me. Maybe some day you will find your courage and return. Until then my love, You Still don't Know How Much I Love You.

That year, I began compiling the poems of this book, and my love for the rustic beauty of autumn began. Inspired by the changing colors of the season, often viewed during my daily morning walks, "I Wrote a Poem of Autumn" became my sixth book in print, my second book of nature poems, and autumn became my favorite season! (Front Cover Photo: My granddaughter, Trejaqnae, who will be a teenager this year.)
